

Soundgarden - Day I Tried To Live

Tom: G

(off of the album Superunknown)

The intro is played by two guitars, one slightly distorted, the other with a clean tone....the distorted guitar's riff is played a few more times in different parts of the song. Just listen to it to get all the parts right:

guitar 1 (a little distortion):

guitar 2 (clear tone):

comes in on second measure the first cycle of the riff guitar one is playing on fourth time play this for second guitar:

then the bass and drums come in for their little intro and during that the distorted guitar plays something close to this slowly in rythm with the bass:

then comes the main riff, and oh how nice it is:

all strums are DOWN-

I'm not sure but I think that right before the main riff is played this chord is strummed once :

e 6
B 6
G 7
D 8
A 8
E 6

the main riff is repeated it I think 5 times and then goes back into the intro riff the distorted guitar played and then back into the main riff later and then....you get it.

oh, towards the end there's a little dink of a riff that sort of hangs there until the end - I forgot to figure that out but it shouldn't exactly be difficult.

that's about it.

disclaimer: I figured ths out on an acoustic guitar so keep that in mind while you fix the mistakes....
