                                                                And suddenly I'm not so alone
Intro: E
                                                                I'm finally breathing
                                                                Like I never could on my own
                                                                Start the countdown, let's get it on [Primeira Parte]
                                                                Scream our lungs out to our favorite song
 I'm looking in the rearview mirror
                                                                'Cause this is where I belong
 Everything looks the same
                                                                This is where I belong
 There's nothing but broken streetlights
                                                                [Ponte]
 And I'm just trying to escape
                                                                 Look past the warning signs
 I'm waiting on a distant feeling
                                                                 The same ones that told me
 I'm waiting for things to chance
                                                                "Yeah, you can't turn back and run
 It's getting hard to ride on empty
                                                                Play it safe before you come undone"
 But maybe I'm not so far away
                                                                 If you saw through my eyes
'Cause it feels like home
[Refrão]
                                                                 This view is worth it
                                                                Can't believe me when I say
 I found a reason
                                                                There's no place in this world I'd rather be
And suddenly I'm not so alone
                                                                [Refrão]
I'm finally breathing
Like I never could on my own
                                                                 I found a reason
Start the countdown, let's get it on
                                                                And suddenly I'm not so alone
Scream our lungs out to our favorite song
                                                                I'm finally breathing
                                                                Like I never could on my own
'Cause this is where I belong
This is where I belong
                                                                Start the countdown, let's get it on
                                                                Scream our lungs out to our favorite song
                                                                'Cause this is where I belong
                                                                This is where I belong
[Segunda Partel
                                                                 I found a reason (I found a reason)
 I can tell you just don't get it
                                                                And suddenly I'm not so alone
 And that you'll never understand
                                                                I'm finally breathing (I'm finally breathing)
                                                                Like I never could on my own
 I'm sorry that I can't be perfect
 But I'm not changing who I am
                                                                Start the countdown, let's get it on
                                                                Scream our lungs out to our favorite song (favorite song)
 Maybe there's no destination
 Maybe I'm gonna make mistakes
                                                                'Cause this is where I belong
Let you in on one of my secrets
                                                                ( E )
 I'm still just as lost as yesterday
But it feels like home
[Refrão]
                                                                'Cause this is where I belong
