

Stone Temple Pilots - The Art Of Letting Go

Tom: E
Intro: E

A
You can drive, you don't even know me
I don't mind, I'll just take the back seat
Dbm
Close my eyes, 'cause I just need to rest now
I'm so tired, from always running in and out

A
Get in line, just another repeat
Keep in time, we're moving to the new beat
Dbm
Close my eyes, 'cause I just need to rest now
C
I'm so tired, from always running in and out

C
Of all the places I have gone
And all the faces I have known
They never seem to feel like home
And now it's time for letting go

A
I hope to see your smile again
But some day's far too long of a road

E (E)
The art of letting go
I may be setting myself up to have to
A
Walk the streets alone
E
For letting go

A
You can drive, I don't even know me
Take your time, it's only for the lonely
Dbm
It's in your eyes, and I don't need to rest now

I'm alright, it's never hard to figure out

A
Find the time, we don't need a repeat
Keep in mind, we're moving to a new beat
Dbm
A rise in tide, out there is the feeling
I'm so tired, but only when I'm breathing

C
Of all the places I have gone
And all the faces I have known
They never seem to feel like home
And now it's time for letting go

A
I hope to see your smile again
But some day's far too long of a road

E (E)
The art of letting go
I may be setting myself up to have to
A
Walk the streets alone
E
For letting go

[Solo] EbM7 G EbM7 G Gbm11 E
A
I hope to see your smile again
But some day's far too long of a road

E (E)
The art of letting go
I may be setting myself up to have to
A
Walk the streets alone
E
For letting go

Acordes

