

Supergrass - Shes So Loose

```
Well she couldn't stop screaming
                tom:
                                                                            Fm(12th fret)
                Am
        From: Kevin Mulhern
                                                                            Its getting harder again
Date: Tue, 3 Oct 1995 14:04:32 0100
                                                                             In the heart of the world
Heres one of the best tunes ( In fact, they are all SUPERB ) From the " I Sould CoCo " album
                                                                 Now you DON'T play this, this time
Intro: The intro is just one chord " F something " I don't
                                                                            Shes
                                                                                   So
                                                                                        Loose )
Know the name of it, It is x33200
I think its some sort of F, so I'll just Instead play this
Write it as F, so if you see
 F you'll know what mean
You'll have to listen to the song a few times to Now you go into the solo ( it isn't 100% correct but its as Get the strumming pattern close as
                                                                 I can get it )
Verse 1
                      Ε
         Take my love away
                                                                 In the last barr only pick on 5th fret and slide
                                                                 Down and up
         Its never gonna work for you
Chorus
                                                                  If you don't think it is right you can
                                                                      Fiddle around with it a bit if you want
        Well I met her at night
                                                                 Now you play the chorus again
        You know that seeing is believing
                                                                 Chorus
        I know the feeling was right
                                                                         Well I met her at night
        Well she couldn't stop screaming
                                                                         You know that seeing is believing
        Fm (12 fret)
        And she swallowed it down
                                                                         I know the feeling was right
        To the heart of the world
                                                                         Well she couldn't stop screaming
                                                                         Em(12th fret)
         Shes
                 So
                        Loose
                                                                         She swallowed it down
         Shes so loose
                                                                         To the heart of the world
      You go back to F now and play the intro again
                                                                         Shes
Verse 2
                                                                 F = x33200
                                          Ε
                                                                 E= 0222xx
          Take these wings away
                                                                 This is a brilliant song to play and to listen too
                                                                 Play it too your hearts content!
          There never gonna work for me
                                                                 If your see any big mistakes then let me know!
Chorus
                                                                 Happy PLAYING!
           Well I met her at night
                                                                                           Andrew Mulhern
                                                                                    1
                                                                 E|| |
           You know that seeing is believing
                                                                                              I am Today
                                                                                            You are Tomorrow
           I know the feeling was right
                                                                                            I Light the Way
                                                                                       While you Drown the Sorrow
```

Oferecimento Lojalele.com.br

Acordes

