

Suzanne Vega - Calypso

I learned this from the book
_The_Authentic_Guitar_Style_of_Suzanne_Vega_, be without it. Buy it; it's only $12.95, and it has very good transcriptions of eleven songs from Suzanne's first two albums. If your local music store doesn't have it, do a special order or call Hal Leonard (Cherry Lane's distributor) directly; that's how I got it.

TAB FOR INTRO AND FIRST VERSE:

[The second and third verses are slightly different; if you want to get it exactly right, just listen to the recording.] [An equal sign (=) is a hammer-on; 2 means quickly hammer-on from 0 to 2.] [Accents are on the 1st, 4th, and 7th eighth notes of each measure; those are usually played by the thumb. (In the recording, you can barely even hear the non-accented notes.)) [Actually in G; capo at the 3rd fret.]

LYRICS AND CHORDS:

[It's a judgement call as to whether the E7's are actually E's or E7's.
And it doesn't really matter.] [For the "I let him go" parts at the ends of the verses, play as many the last two measures of the first verse.]
[Capo 3.]

E7	E7sus4	E7	E7sus4	E7	E7sus4	E7	E7sus4
E7	E7sus4	E7	E7sus4	E7	E7sus4	E7	E7sus4
I live	on an island,	and I 'waken	to the dawn
A	A7/6sus4	A	A7/6sus4
Long time	ago,	I watched	him struggle with	the sea
E7	E7sus4	E7	E7sus4	E7	E7sus4	E7	E7sus4
I knew	that he was	drowning,	and I brought	him in to me
A	A	A	A
Now today,	come morning	light
C	C	Gbm	Gbm	E	E7sus4	E	E7sus4
He sails	away; after	one	last night,	I let him go

Thick and wild and hidden is the sweetness there that grows
My hair, it blows long as I sing into the wind
I tell of nights where I could taste the salt on his skin Salt of the waves and of tears
And though he pulled away, I kept him here for years Now I let him go just play it like the "I let him go" parts at the end of the verses.]

In the dawn he sails away to be gone forever more And the waves will take him in again, but he'll know their ways know
I will stand upon the shore with a clean heart and my song in the wind
The sand will sting my feet and the sky will burn It's a lonely time ahead; I do not ask him to return; I let
I let him go
