

The Bacon Brothers - Go My Way

```
Tom: Bb
                                                                Oh my god, oh my god
                                                               Where did she get that body?
Intro: Bbm Ebm
                                                                                                Rhm
       Bbm
           Ebm
                                                                What's she got on the iPod that gives her hips that sway?
        Bbm
        Bbm
                                                                She knows she's an 11 but if I was 007
            Ebm
                                                                         Bbm
       Ebm )
( Bm
                                                                I would take that girl to heaven each and every day
Still in bed but it's time to go
                                                                                 Ebm
                                                                     Db
You bump your head, you stub your toe
                                                                But things just don't seem to go my way
And the landlord says the rent's 2 weeks behind.
You catch the train but the train breaks down, it starts to [Solo] Bbm
rain
                                                                       Bbm Ebm
You walk downtown to the only lousy job that you could find.
                                                                       Bbm
                                                                            Ebm
                                                                       Bbm
                                                                           Fbm
Your boss says, "You're not working here no more"
                                                                        Bbm
            Bbm
                                                      Fh
                                                                You're back at home and you're back in bed
But here she comes like a vision sliding through the door, you
sav
                                                                You're all alone with an aching head, you close your eyes as the sun comes streaming in
Oh my god, oh my god
                                                                    Bbm
                                                                It could be better but it could be worse
                                                                  Ebm
Where did she get that body?
                                Bhm
                                                                Fhm
What's she got on the iPod that gives her hips that sway?
                                                                And it's not like it's some evil curse, you drift off to the place where dreams begin
She knows she's an 11 but if I was 007
        Bbm
                                                                There she is just talking to some guys
I would take that girl to heaven each and every day
                                                                But you walk right up, you look that girl straight in the Dh
                       Fhm
But things just don't seem to go my way
                                                                eyes, and you say
( Bbm Ebm )
                                                                Oh my god, oh my god Baby!
( Bbm Fbm )
It's Thursday night no time to pout
                                                                Where did you get that body?
Cause you got no job might as well go out and head down to the
                                                                                                    Bbm
                                                                Baby what you got on the iPod that gives you hips that sway playground of the stars
So you brush your teeth and you smoke some dope, but there's Fm
                                                               You know you're an 11 but I feel like 007 girl Mr.T, the velvet rope and all the pretty people getting out of long black cars
                                                                I wanna take you straight to heaven each and every day
T says "You're not getting in here tonight'
                                                                  Db
                                                                                 Eb
        Bbm
                                                                Tonight things just might be going my way
Here she comes again stepping to the front of the line, you
                                                                Dh
                                                                                Eb
say
                                                                Tell me baby, are you gonna go my way
                                                                      Db
                                                                You know things just don't seem to go my way
Acordes
                   Bbn
                                 Ebn
```

