

The Strumbellas - We Don't Know

We all know if we're lost, that we'll find a way
Intro: Am F C G
                                                              We don't know if we leave, will we make it home
Well I know it gets harder every single day
                                                              We all know, there's hope, then we'll be okay
And I know my darkness will never go away
It's hard when you're living and you don't feel much
And you're down and you're hoping that things are gonna change
                                                              -8--8--8--8------
Oh we don't know the roads that we're heading down
We all know if we're lost, that we'll find a way
We don't know if we leave, will we make it home
We all know, there's hope, then we'll be okay
                                                              Oh there's something in my mind that's killing me
And some say it gets brighter
                                                              There's something that this life's not giving me
We just have to wait
                                                              Would you say
Mother mother, I can feel your heart break
                                                              There's something in my mind that's killing me
Burning through me every single day
                                                              There's something that this life's not giving me
                                                              Would you say
It's hard when you're living and you don't feel much
And you're down and you're hurting cause you don't feel loved
                                                              Oh we don't know the roads that we're heading down
It's hard when you're living and you don't feel much
                                                            G We all know if we're lost, that we'll find a way
And you're down and you're hoping that things are gonna change
                                                              We don't know if we leave, will we make it home
Oh we don't know the roads that we're heading down
                                                              We all know, there's hope, then we'll be okay
We all know if we're lost, that we'll find a way
                                                              Oh we don't know the roads that we're heading down
We don't know if we leave, will we make it home
                                                              We all know if we're lost, that we'll find a way
We all know, there's hope, then we'll be okay
                                                              We don't know if we leave, will we make it home
Oh we don't know the roads that we're heading down
                                                              We all know, there's hope, then we'll be okay
