Tell me what you really like
                                                                      I feel it coming, I feel it coming, babe
                                                                      I feel it coming, I feel it coming, babe

Baby I can take my time
                                                                      [The Weeknd]
We don't ever have to fight
                                                                      You've been scared of love
                                                                      And what it did to you
Just take it step-by-step
                                                                      You don't have to run
I can see it in your eyes
                                                                      I know what you've been through
Cause they never tell me lies
                                                                      Just a simple touch
I can feel that body shake
                                                                      And it can set you free
                                                                      We don't have to rush
And the heat between your legs
                                                                      When you're alone with me
[The Weeknd]

                                                                      I feel it coming, I feel it coming, babe

                                                                      I feel it coming, I feel it coming, babe

                                                                      I feel it coming, I feel it coming, babe
                                                                      I feel it coming, I feel it coming, babe
[The Weeknd]
                                                                      I know what you say right now, babe

And faded off this touch
                                                                      I feel it coming, I feel it coming, babe
