The Wood Brothers - Luckiest Man

```
Tom: D
                                                           And yeah they say
                                                           [Refrão]
m
                                                                    F
Intro: Dm A Bb F
                                                           Bb
                                                                           Bb
                                                           Running is useless and fighting is foolish
[Primeira Parte]
                                                           Bb
                                                           You're not gonna win but still you're the luckiest man you're
Dm
        Α
                   Bb
                         E. up against
My whole saturday and sunday too
                                                           Bb
                                                                              Bb
                                                           And too many horses and mysterious forces
Dm A
                 Bb
I was thinkin''bout ways not to lose
                                                           Bb
                                                                         F
                                                                                            Bb
                                                           What you don't know is you are the luckiest man
Dm
        Α
                  Bb
I lay down my weapons is what I've done
                                                                     Bb
              Bb
         Α
                                                           You're the luckiest man
Dm
                                F
Too late to hide, feet too soft to run
                                                           (Dm A Bb F)
(Dm A Bb F)
                    G7
                                     Α7
                           Α
But people say I'm the luckiest man
And yeah they say
                                                           [Terceira Parte]
[Refrão]
                                                                                   Bb
                                                           Dm
                                                                                          F
                                                           Try to keep my faith and keep my mind
Bb
         F
                 Bb
                                F
                                                                      Α
                                                                                          Bb
                                                                                                      F
                                                           Dm
Running is useless and fighting is foolish
                                                           Hate to lose either one when the whip cracks behind
Bb
             F
                                       Bb
                                                           Dm
                                                                                           Bb
                                                                      Α
You're not gonna win but still you're the luckiest man you're
                                                           And I can't help but mourning just a little each night
                                                                                 Bb F
up against
                                                           Dm
                                                                     Α
           F
Bb
                  Bb
                                F
                                                           People say everything is gonna be alright
And too many horses and mysterious forces
                                                                                G7
                                                                                      A A7
                                                           But people say I'm the luckiest man
Bb F
                                Bb
What you don't know is you are the luckiest man
                                                           And yeah they say
         Bb
You're the luckiest man
                                                           [Final]
(Dm A Bb F)
                                                                     F
                                                                             Bb
                                                           Bb
[Segunda Parte]
                                                           Running is useless and fighting is foolish
                                                                                                   Bb
                                                                                                           F
                                                           You're not gonna win but still you're the luckiest man you're
                 Α
                       Bb
I done talked to the devil when he calls my name up against
                              Bb
                                                                              Bb
Dm
           Α
                                                           Bb
But sometimes when I'm losing it all seems the same
                                                           And too many horses and mysterious forces
                 Bb
Dm
                                                                        E F
                                                                                            Bb
And when I fall I'm back up again
                                                           What you don't know is you are the luckiest man
                                   Bb
                                                                    Bb
Dm
                 Α
                                                                          F
Just to slip on the same mistakes and slide right back in You're the luckiest man
                    G7
                                                                     Bb
But people say I'm the luckiest man
                                                           You're the luckiest man
                                                           (Dm A Bb F)
Acordes
```

