

Thutmose - Memories

```
Tom: G
                                                                 Why won't you love me now? Why won't you love me now?
                        Fm
                                                                             Gm Fm
My memories, I
                                                                 My memories, I (Ahh)
My memories, I
                                                                 My memories, why won't you love me now? (Ahh)
                 Gm
                      Fm
My memories came back in the form of someone else
                                                                  Stepped over me like a sidewalk
I know this feelin', yes I know this very well
                                                                 That's your loss, your loss
                     Gm
Why won't you love me now? Why won't you love me now?
                                                                 You self-destruct and I watch, I watch, I watch
Why won't you love me now? (Why won't you love me now?)
                                                                Memories
                                                                Don't let 'em fool you, baby
Cm
Memories
                                                                Memories
 It's gon' take some gettin' used to
                                                                Don't you ever let them fool you
Memories
                                                                'Cause I know that you know that it ain't true
 Feel the pain when it hits you
                                                                Lock it up, lock it up, I can't deal with ya
Memories
                                                                Lock it up, lock it up, take your things witcha
 Don't you ever let them fool you
                                                                 I finally had enough
  Don't you ever let them fool you
                                                                Out to the ride you go
 'Cause I know that you know that it ain't true
  I learned the hard way about trust, about us, about us
                                                                 What's left if I give you my all?
 You sin and be on your high horse, we're not so stable
                                                                Give you my all, give you my all
anymore
                                                                 What's left if I give you my all?
 What's left if I give you my all?
                                                                Give you my all, give you my all
                                                                 What's left if I give you my all?
Give you my all, give you my all
 What's left if I give you my all?
                                                                Give you my all, give you my all
                                                                 What's left if I give you my all?
Give you my all, give you my all
 What's left if I give you my all?
                                                                Give you my all, give you my all
Give you my all, give you my all
                                                                 My memories came back in the form of someone else
 What's left if I give you my all?
                                                                  I know this feelin', yes I know it very well
Give you my all, give you my all
                                                                                         Gm
                                                                 Why won't you love me now? Why won't you love me now?
                   Gm
  My memories came back in the form of someone else
                                                                 Why won't you love me now? Why won't you love me now?
 I know this feelin', yes I know it very well
                                                                                       Gm
                                                                                                Fm
                                                                 Why won't you love me now? Why won't you love me now? (Ahh)
                       Gm
                               Fm
 Why won't you love me now? Why won't you love me now?
                                                                 Why won't you love me now? Why won't you love me now? (Ahh)
```

Acordes

