

Yellowcard - Words hands heart

```
can't tell the difference between myth and man
                                                          Bb D Em
                                                                                         G
  NOTE: the original tuning is Drop D, but if you're only
                                                        or what's necessary or where i should stand playing the chords E A D G B e its fine.
EADGBe tuning:
                                                         So do we dare now
Drop D tuning:
                                                        raise our voices loud
                                                        we're searching for something that cannot be found D2
                                                               Bm
 The whole world was sleeping and i was there
                                                        i hear open mouths
                        D2
 you could just sense this feeling in the air
                                                        and i see open hands
                                                                                                      Bm - G - Bb
                                                        - (repeat)
like no one's words were good enough
                                                        but the blinded and silent i can't understand
to define what we fear
   Em
                                                          the whole world is watching with one blank stare
and no one's words were strong enough
                                                                              D2
to fix what happened here oh oh
                                                         i could just sense this feeling of ill repair
            F
                                                        like no one's heart is full enough
 lead on to save me lead us all there
                                                        to keep away this fear
find me some answers one nation beware
                                                           Em
                                                        and no one's heart is strong enough
           Fm
                 G
can't tell the difference between myth and man
                                                           Bm
  Bb D Em G
                                                        to fix what happened here
or what's necessary or where i should stand
                                                            D
                                                                     Е
                                                         lead on to save me lead us all there
                                                        The whole world is different now men have died
                       D2
 you could just sense this feeling in our eyes
                                                        can't tell the difference between myth and man
                                                           Bb D Em
                                                        or what's necessary or where i should stand
like no one's hands are big enough to hold on to this fear
                                                         So do we dare now
and no one's hands are strong enough
                                                        raise our voices loud
to fix what happened here
                                                        we're searching for something that cannot be found
                                                                  Bm
    D E G
 lead on to save me lead us all there
                                                        and i see open hands
   Bb D Em
find me some answers one nation beware
    D
         Em
                   G (let ring)
                                                        but the blinded and silent i can't understand
```

Acordes

